

ARCHITECTURAL INTERN AT ARCHIVAL STUDIES

Archival Studies is seeking a motivated and creative individual to join our team full-time as an Architectural Intern. This is a great opportunity for someone passionate about architecture and design to gain hands-on experience within an interdisciplinary and dynamic environment.

Your responsibilities will encompass a wide range of tasks, including:

- Assisting in the research, planning, and conceptualization of spatial projects.
- Supporting the development of project visualizations and presentation materials.
- Collaborating with architects on design detailing and construction documentation.
- Helping with the preparation of technical drawings, plans, and specifications.
- Participating in the design and prototyping phases of furniture and architectural elements.
- Contributing to team meetings and creative brainstorming sessions.
- Gaining experience in all phases of the projects while working with clients and the team.

Throughout your internship, you will gain invaluable experience in the following areas:

- Transformation Architecture and Design.
- Local Production.
- Collaboration within a dynamic and innovative design team.

We are seeking candidates who possess the following qualifications and skills:

- Educational background or practical experience in architecture or a related field.
- Proficiency in design software such as Rhino and Adobe Suite.
- Familiarity with building materials, systems, and construction procedures.
- Strong communication and time-management skills.
- Ability to contribute creatively in a dynamic and collaborative environment.

Candidates with the following additional qualifications will stand out:

- Familiarity with 3D modeling and rendering software.
- A keen eye for aesthetic detail and innovative design solutions.

We offer a dynamic work environment within our international and interdisciplinary team of architects, designers, and joiners. If you are a motivated individual with the described background, we would love to hear from you!

To apply, please send your resume, portfolio and cover letter, preferably in English, to job@archivalstudies.net
